PREFACE.

It is customary to apologize to the public when presenting a new book for their consideration. The works upon Book-keeping already published were made in the East. Our methods of doing business and our prices differ somewhat from the methods and prices of the East. We have consulted with book-keepers, business men, and prominent teachers on this coast, and believe that this manual, the product of our experience and consultations, will be found better suited to the wants of our public schools than other similar works.

Single Entry Book-keeping is extensively used on this coast, consequently, considerable space is given to this system of book-keeping. Our examples and forms are taken, in many instances, directly from the books of merchants in the business centers of this State, and are, therefore, eminently practical.

More attention than usual has been given to the forms and use of business papers, as many have little opportunity of acquiring such knowledge except by an experience that may come too late to prevent errors, and even serious loss.

SUGGESTIONS TO TEACHERS.

1. Book-keeping is very simple and easy of comprehension, and my aim has been to present every point clearly and distinctly, while giving the student only the essential points of the subject to study.

2. A Cash Account presents the elementary ideas of the office of an account; therefore, it is made the first step in the student's progress. The teacher should be satisfied that his class is perfectly familiar with this account before commencing the study of the Ledger.

3. At first, let the student use loose paper and rule his own forms; but, in order to acquire habits of accuracy and neatness, he must copy carefully all the important part of his work in proper blank books.

4. As red ink is apt to become a nuisance in the school-room, I suggest that a hard lead-pencil be used to rule lines and to write all words or phrases usually written with red ink. Let the pencil mark stand for red ink.

5. Students should not be required to memorize definitions and technical terms before they are called to use them. Use the review questions, and others that may suggest themselves to you, at any seasonable time

6. In order to comprehend fully how and when to use the various forms of "business paper," the student should write out notes, orders, receipts, bills, etc., at the time these papers are mentioned in the "set."

7. Capitalization, punctuation, and business penmanship should receive considerable attention, and the blackboard should be made the auxiliary of the text-book in teaching book-keeping and writing.

BOOK-KEEPING.

1. Book-keeping is the science of accounts, and teaches how to record business transactions in a systematic manner.

2. Book-keeping is of two kinds—Single Entry and Double Entry.

3. In Single Entry we make an entry only when a personal account is affected, at which time we charge or credit the person—making an entry to only one account—hence single entry.

4. In Double Entry every business transaction is entered in two or more accounts, according to the number affected by the transaction. Every time we debit an account with an item, we credit some other account for the same amount—hence, double entry.

5. An Account is a collection of items under one heading in the Ledger.

6. A Personal Account is an account with a person, firm or corporation.

7. A Transaction is any business operation; as, a purchase, a sale, or an agreement between two or more persons.

8. An Entry is the memorandum or written statement of a transaction. An original entry is the first entry of a transaction.

9. Two kinds of books are used in book-keeping—Principal, and Auxiliary or Aid books.

10. The Ledger, and all books containing accounts which are to be transferred directly to the Ledger, may be called Principal books. The Day Book or Journal, Cash Book, and sometimes Sales Book and Invoice Book, contain an account of transactions that are to be carried directly to the Ledger.

DEFINITION OF SINGLE ENTRY BOOKS.

The number of Books required to conduct a business in either Single or Double Entry, and the particular mode of keeping the accounts must depend upon the nature and extent of the business. Single Entry is chiefly used when the business is limited, and the transactions are of a simple character. The following list of books comprises all that are usually used in Single Entry: Day Book, Ledger, Cash Book, Invoice Book, Sales Book.

Day Book.—This book usually contains statements of all the transactions in our business which give rise to persons' owing us, or to our owing them. The date of the transaction, the name of the party, and a description of the "values" received or given, must be recorded with the utmost precision.

The Ledger.—This book is the great reservoir of accounts. Into it flow all the debits and credits of the business. Its contents are usually made up from the Day Book. Some book-keepers, however, post directly from the Invoice, Sales and Cash Books to the Ledger. The Ledger enables us to see, at one view, all that a person owes us, and all that we owe him.

Cash Book.—This book contains an account of all cash received or paid. The entries should be made in it at or near the time of the transaction.

Invoice Book.—This book contains a minute description of all the merchandise bought or received. Copies are made in this book from the bills of goods purchased. The most convenient way of keeping an Invoice Book is to paste the bills received into a book prepared for that purpose. The amounts of each page should be added and carried forward.

Sales Book.—This book contains a description of the merchandise we sell or pass out of our possession. As the purchaser selects his goods, they are entered in the Sales Book, from which entry his bill is made out. The amounts of each page should be added and carried forward.

Bill Book.—This book contains a description of all the notes, drafts, and other species of negotiable paper held by or against us. Negotiable paper in our favor, is classed under the head of Bills Receivable, and that against us, under the head of Bills Payable.

DIAGRAM SHOWING THE RELATION OF THE VARIOUS BOOKS TO ONE ANOTHER.

Some book-keepers post directly from the Invoice, Sales, and Cash Books to the Ledger. If posting only from the Day Book, all business transactions requiring an entry in the Ledger, must first appear in the Day Book.

EXPLANATION OF TERMS USED.

Whenever one person receives anything from another, which he does not pay for at the time, he is said to go in debt for it, and he is called a Debtor, and, in book-keeping, he is debited for the amount. To debit means to charge with the amount of the indebtedness incurred.

A person who sells property without receiving his pay at the time, is said to give credit for it, and he is called a Creditor, and, in book-keeping, he is credited for the amount.

The buyer on q/c is always the Debtor, and the seller on q/c is always the Creditor. In keeping accounts it is customary, and more convenient, to abridge and write Dr. for Debtor, and Cr. for Creditor.

The word To is used on the Dr. side of an account, and indicates indebtedness to us from the person named in the account.

The word By is used on the Cr. side of an account and indicates indebtedness by us to the person named in the account.

Any kind of value belonging to us is called a resource, and any debit owed by us is called a liability.

All written or printed obligations of whatever form—usually notes and drafts—not payable at sight, in our possession, for which a certain specified amount is to be received, are called Bills Receivable.

All written or printed obligations of whatever kind—usually notes and drafts—not payable at sight, for which a specified amount is to be paid by us, are called Bills Payable.

An Invoice is a bill of merchandise in which all the articles are enumerated, with the price of each article.

An Inventory is a schedule of unsold articles or goods, estimated at their known cash value.

Cash is a term applied to coin and to all business paper payable at sight; as Bank Notes, Checks, Drafts, P. O. Orders, etc.

The Balance of an account is the excess of one money column over the other.

Footing Lines are the single lines, usually drawn with red ink, under the money columns to be added.

Closing Lines are the double lines, usually drawn with red ink under an account, when the account is closed.

CASH BOOK ACCOUNTS.

Dealers that never give any credit require but one book and that is the Cash Book. Receiving credit is of no consequence in book-keeping if none be given. As this book is the key book of all the others, we shall commence with it.

Business men attach much importance to the Cash Account, as it is a check against improper payments, and omissions and erroneous entries in other books. Every person should keep a Cash Book. It is customary in actual business to balance this account daily, but the student may balance weekly or monthly as he chooses.

It would aid the beginner if he would look upon "Cash" as a person. When money is received or paid in, Cash is debited because it passes into Cash's hands; and when money is paid out Cash is credited, because Cash supplies the money that makes the payment.

The left-hand column is for cash received, or "Cash Dr.;" the right-hand column is for cash paid out, or "Cash Cr." Enter in the left-hand column the cash on hand and every receipt of cash, and enter in the right-hand column every cash payment.

When you wish to "balance" or close your Cash Account, add the money columns, subtract the total payments from the total receipts, and enter the balance in red ink in the right-hand column. Draw your closing lines, and bring down under the left hand column, in black ink, this balance, which is the cash on hand for the continuation of business.

The following cash transactions will illustrate fully the method of keeping a Single Entry Cash Book:

(John's Cash Account.)—Jan. 1, 1883. Cash from father. $3.50. Jan. 2. Paid 50¢ for a slate, and 75¢ for stationery. Jan. 6. Received $1.50 for three days' work storing wood. Jan. 8. ### REVIEW QUESTIONS ON CASH BOOK.

Define Cash. State reasons for keeping a Cash Book. Draw a Cash Book form on the blackboard, and explain the use of the various columns. On which side are Cash receipts entered, and why? What is meant by "balancing the Cash Book?"
When and why is the Cash Book balanced? State the use of red ink in balancing. Why is red ink used?

LEDGER ACCOUNTS.

As has been stated, the Ledger is the principal book. When business transactions are few and simple, as with the farmer and the mechanic, the Ledger may be made the only book of accounts.

Each page, or folio, of the Ledger is divided into two parts from top to bottom. The left-hand division is always the debit side, and the right-hand division the credit side of the account. When the Ledger is the only book kept, it is best to use a double-page Ledger, in which the left-hand page is the Dr. side, and the right-hand one the Cr. side of the account.

Study the following examples and forms carefully, and then write the examples on pages 15 and 16 in Ledger form,—using single folio for the first, and double folio for the others.

(A Farmer's Acc't with a Hired Man.) May 1st, 1883. John Edwards has worked one month, @ $30 per month. 10th. Paid Edwards $12. 11th. Let him have 4 cents wheat, @ $1.40 per C. 14th. Paid him $10. 15th. Credit him with two weeks' work, $15.

REVIEWS AND SUGGESTIONS.

Prepare similar accounts and let students assist in making them. Require the students to draw a Ledger form on the blackboard and explain the use of the various columns. What is meant by opening an account? By closing an account? What is an account? What is shown by the Dr. side of an acc't? The Cr. side of an acc't? What is the difference between the Dr. and the Cr. side called? On which side is the difference placed, and why? When and why is an acc't closed? When and why is the balance brought down? What use is made of red ink in closing?

THE DAY BOOK.

If you do an extensive credit business, a book of consecutive record, giving a plain and simple account of the business as it progresses day by day, will be of essential service; and merchants usually keep a Day Book or "Blotter," as it is sometimes called, in which are entered transactions as they occur. These transactions are then transferred to the Ledger. This is called posting.

The date in the Day Book is kept in the middle of the page, and the left-hand columns are used for "checking," and for entering the number of the Ledger page to which the entry is posted.

Remember that if you post only from the Day Book, all business transactions requiring an entry in the Ledger must first appear in the Day Book; such as cash paid or received on account; notes or other business paper given or received on account; Mdse. bought or sold on account, or partly paid for at the time.

DAY BOOK ACCOUNTS.

The following Day Book form should be carefully examined by the student, and the examples given be written in proper form:

INSTRUCTIONS FOR OPENING AND CLOSING A SET OF SINGLE ENTRY BOOKS.

For Opening a Set of Books. Credit the proprietor in the Day Book, or Memorandum Book, with his Resources, and debit him with his Liabilities. If it is a partnership business, credit and debit each partner in a similar manner.

Take an inventory of all property on hand, classify it, and enter each class of property in its proper book; cash, in the Cash Book or Bank Book; notes, in the Bill Book; Mdse., in the Invoice Book or Memorandum Book; etc., etc. In a partnership business an agreement should be carefully prepared and signed, and recorded in the Memorandum Book.

For Closing a Set of Books. Prepare a "form" for a statement—see page 21. Close each Ledger account, except the proprietor's, and carry the balance to its proper place in the Statement. Close the Cash Book and carry its balance to the Statement. Examine the Bill Book and ascertain the amounts still due on Notes, Drafts, etc., and enter these amounts in the Statement. Take an Inventory of Mdse. on hand, and all other property not accounted for in the Books, and enter these Inventories in the Statement.

One side of the Statement will now show all the Resources, and the other side all of the Liabilities of the business. By closing this statement into the proprietor's account, or by closing the proprietor's account into this Statement, the loss or gain may be ascertained. (For examples of Statements, see page 21.)

Proof-Sheet. If you post only from the Day Book, the sum of the debit and credit footings of the several Ledger accounts, should equal the total footings of the Day Book. Make the proof-sheet before the accounts are closed.

Net Capital or Net Insolvency. Find the Net Capital or the Net Insolvency,—by taking the difference between the Resources and the Liabilities.

Net Gain or Loss. Find the Gain or Loss,—by taking the difference between the Net Capital at commencing and the Net Capital at closing.

SUGGESTIONS AND REVIEWS.

Why is a Day Book kept? What kind of transactions are entered in the Day Book? When are cash items entered in the Day Book? How are, in the Day Book, the debts distinguished from the credits? (See pp. 17 and 19.) Why are the Day Book entries transferred to the Ledger? What is this process of transferring called? Draw a Day Book form on the board, and write, at the upper left-hand corner of form, a number to represent this particular page of the Day Book. Draw a Ledger form on the board, and write, at the upper left-hand corner of form, a number to represent this particular page of the Ledger. Point out, on the board, the two sides of a Ledger account. What is the left-hand division called? Why? What use is made of the column on the left side of each of the two right-hand columns? What use is made of the two columns on the left side of each division of a Ledger account? Head the Ledger form on the board, using your own name.

Head the Day Book form on the board, using the name of the place or district, where your school is located, and yesterday's date. Prepare an example of selling to (use your own name), on acc't, and make it the first entry in the Day Book form on the board. Another, of buying of (use your own name and the date of to-day), on acc't, and make it the second entry in the Day Book form on the board. Post the first entry, using the Ledger form on the board; and be careful not to forget to enter, immediately after the posting, the Ledger page in the Day Book, and the Day-Book page in the Ledger. Post the second entry, and attend to the pages, as directed. Close the Ledger account on the board. Point out the footing line; the closing line. Which of these are single; which double lines? Where, and how far, should the former extend? (Across the money columns, and on the lowest of the ruled lines on which either an item has been posted, or a balance entry made.) Where, and how far, should closing lines extend? (Under the ruled line next to the footing line; and across each of the two date, folio, and money columns.) Prepare an example of selling to (use the name of a student), on acc't, and of receiving at the time, a part payment by cash or note. Make this entry in the Day Book form on the board. (See p. 19, entries of Aug. 5th and 6th.)

MODEL SET II.

[This Set illustrates the use of the Sales Book and Invoice Book as principal books. (See p. 7; No. 10.) Accounts, in the Sales Book and Invoice Book, which, ordinarily, ought to be entered on the Day Book, to be thence transferred to the Ledger, are, in this Set, directly posted from these, otherwise, auxiliary books; thereby obviating the necessity of entering these accounts in the Day Book. Merchants, however, in order to post from the Day Book only, generally prefer to enter on this book all accounts that would have to appear there in case a Sales Book and an Invoice Book were not kept. Students, therefore, should be required to write the Day Book of this Set, additionally, in that full form which shows all accounts that must be transferred to the Ledger.]

BUSINESS PAPER.

Negotiable Paper is any form of business paper that can be transferred from one person to another for a valuable consideration, either by endorsement or assignment. There are several classes of negotiable paper, the most important of which, are Bills of Exchange, Bank Notes, Promissory Notes, Certificates of Deposit, Checks, Bonds, Bills of Lading, Letters of Credit, and Due-Bills.

Non-negotiable Paper is that which is made payable to a person therein named, without authority to transfer to a third party.

Negotiability. Bearer or order are the words usually used to express negotiability, but any words in a legal instrument by which it can be inferred that it is intended to be negotiable will make it transferable. When payable to bearer the paper may be transferred without endorsement; but when payable to order it requires the payee's signature before it can be transferred.

A Promissory Note is a written or printed promise by one party to another, to pay a specified sum of money at a certain time, with or without interest. The original parties are called the maker and the payee.

The Several Kinds of promissory notes are called Individual, Joint, Joint and Several, Chattel, and Bank Notes. In the individual note, but one person makes the promise to pay. In the joint note, the promise is made jointly by two or more persons. In the joint and several note, each signer assumes the whole responsibility.

EXCHANGE.

Exchange is a term employed to denote that commercial usage, by which merchants and others avoid the risk and expense of sending money to make payments in distant places, by transmitting Drafts or Bills of Exchange.

A Bill of Exchange, or Draft, is a written order, directed to a person in a distant place, for the payment of a specified sum of money at a specified time. There are two classes of Exchange—foreign, and inland or domestic.

Inland Bills of Exchange are such as are both drawn and paid in the same state or country.

Foreign Bills of Exchange are drawn upon persons living in another state or country. They are usually drawn in sets of three, one of which being honored, the others become void. The separate bills are sent by different routes, or at different times, in order to insure a certainty, that at least one shall be received.

BUSINESS FORMS.

BILL OF LADING.

A Bill of Lading is an instrument signed by the proper officer of a vessel, acknowledging the receipt of certain packages or quantities of goods, and promising under certain exceptions, to deliver the same "in like good order," at the place directed.

LETTER OF CREDIT.

A Letter of Credit is a letter authorizing credit to a certain amount of money to be given to the bearer.

16. A LETTER OF CREDIT.

SAN JOSE, July 10, 1883.

Messrs. C. H. STRONG & Co.,
London, England.

Gentlemen,

We have the pleasure of introducing to you Mr. Henry C. Clayton, who desires us to open a credit with you, for him, for six hundred pounds sterling. You will please honor his drafts to an amount not exceeding in the aggregate the above sum, and charge the same to us.

Very truly,
T. E. BEANS.

Signature of
Henry A. Clayton.

ENDORSEMENTS.

Endorsement. Anything written on the back of negotiable paper, having relation to the paper itself, is an endorsement. The endorsement is generally made for the purpose of transferring the right of the holder to some other person.

There are five kinds, called the Blank, Full, Conditional, Qualified, and Restrictive. A blank endorsement is made by the holder's simply writing his name on the back of the paper. An endorsement in full mentions the name of the person in whose favor it is made. A conditional endorsement is one made subject to some condition which must be performed to render the instrument valid. A qualified endorsement is one in which the endorser can qualify or limit his responsibility by the terms of the endorsement. A restrictive endorsement is one which restricts the payment to some particular person. As no particular form of words is necessary in the construction of negotiable paper, so no particular form is necessary for its endorsement. But custom has established certain forms which are in use among business men. Following are the usual forms of endorsement:

BUSINESS FORMS.

Blank :

G. R. Kleeberger.

In Full:

*Pay to J. H. Braly or order.
Eliza B. Barnes.*

Qualified, 1st Form:

*Pay to J. H. Ellwood or order, without recourse.
M. E. Wilson.*

Qualified, 2d Form:

*Pay to Mary P. Adams or order.

BUSINESS FORMS.

RECEIPTS.

A Receipt is an acknowledgment in writing that a sum of money, or something of value, has been received. The simplest form of a receipt is a signature to an itemized bill. The purpose in exacting a receipt is that it may serve as a voucher in case of a dispute as to what has occurred. As a simple evidence of the payment of money at a particular time, a bank check drawn to the order of the payee is the best.

BILL OF SALE.

31. SHORT FORM.

LAKEPORT, Aug. 10, 1883.

I hereby acknowledge the sale of (here insert a description of the property), to Charles P. Adams of San Jose, Cal.

PETER A. AMES.

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

An Agreement is virtually a contract, by which a certain person or persons, agree to perform certain duties within a specified time.

Agreements should show that they are made for a reasonable consideration, else they are void in law.

Copies of an agreement should always be prepared in duplicate, and each party to the agreement should retain a copy.

32. GENERAL FORM.

This Agreement, made the first day of May, 1883, between Chas. C. Adams, of Galt, County of Sacramento, State of California, of the first part, and F. A. Butts, of Pacheco, County of Contra Costa, State of California, of the second part,

Witnesseth, that the said Chas. C. Adams, in consideration of the agreement of the party of the second part, hereinafter contained, contracts, and agrees with the said F. A. Butts, to (here insert specification of agreement).

And the said F. A. Butts, in consideration of the prompt fulfillment of this contract, by the party of the first part, contracts, and agrees with the said Chas. C. Adams, to pay (here insert amount).

In case of failure of agreement by either of the parties hereto, it is hereby stipulated and agreed that the party so failing shall pay to the other (here insert amount), as fixed and settled damages.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands, the day and year first above written.

CHAS. C. ADAMS.

F. A. BUTTS.

BUSINESS FORMS.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

A Landlord is a person who leases real estate to another. The person who holds a lease is known as a tenant, and in law he is called the lessee. The person giving the lease—the landlord—is called the lessor. No particular form of wording a lease is necessary.

It is essential that the lease state all the conditions, as additional verbal promises avail nothing in law. It is held, generally, that a written instrument contains the details, and states the bargain entire, as the contracting parties intended.

33. A LEASE.

This Instrument, made the first day of June, 1883, Witnesseth, that Geo. W. Koch, of San Juan, County of San Benito, State of Cal., has rented from A. L. Talbot, of San Juan aforesaid, the dwelling and lot No. 320 Broadway, situated in said town of San Juan, for three years from the above date, at a yearly rental of Two Hundred and Forty Dollars, payable monthly, on the first day of each month.

At the expiration of said above mentioned term, the said Geo. W. Koch agrees to give the said A. L. Talbot peaceable possession of the said dwelling, in as good condition as when taken, ordinary wear and casualties excepted.

In witness whereof, we place hereunto our hands and seals, the day and year aforesaid.

BUSINESS LETTERS.

Business Letters should be clear and concise. No more words should be used than are necessary to state the business fairly; nor should words essential to the construction be omitted. Avoid interlineations and erasures; these indicate a lack of interest in and attention to the subject, and greatly disfigure the letter.

The teacher should use the blackboard to develop the different parts of a letter.

MODEL SET III.

In the following set, we have presented a method of keeping accounts, which is used by several large provision merchants in this State. The Day Book, in this set, is a combination of Day Book, Order Book, and Sales Book; some small invoices, also, are entered in it. As in the Day Book models of the preceding sets, To and By have been omitted in the entries, because the terms Dr. and Cr., written directly after the party's name, are sufficiently explicit.

The Ledger of this set, as shown on pp. 72 and 73, has wider pages, which permit us to carry the different items of each Day Book entry on account, in full to the Ledger, where the total cost of each item is placed, in smaller figures, above each of the different items.

This method of entering the items in full on the face of the Ledger, has the advantage that an itemized bill may be ~~made~~ out without referring to the Day Book.

MODEL SET III.

An Invoice Book, a Memorandum Book, and a Bill Book are also kept. Paste the invoices in the Invoice Book, and post those charged to acc't, directly to the Ledger.

San Jose, Jan. 1, 1884. Henry Norton and Carl Allen commence business with the following resources and liabilities; gains and losses to be divided equally:

Carl Allen invests, cash, $800; merchandise, $800; personal accounts, as follows: Mamie Murray, $150; Wm. Bacon, $250. G. W. Congdon holds Carl Allen's note for $100, dated Dec. 1, '83, at 90 ds.

Henry Norton invests, cash, $1000; merchandise, $700; note against Blanche Krahl for $300, dated, Nov. 1, '83, at 60 ds. Henry Norton owes Mattie Trimble $100, on acc't.

SPECIAL REMARKS ON THE LEDGER.

Index the Ledger accounts in actual business. This is done by arranging in alphabetical order the account-titles with the Ledger-page of each. This index is usually kept in the beginning of the Ledger, but it is often convenient in posting, to have it written on card-board and placed before the book-keeper. In an extensive business the index may be kept in book form, with several pages reserved for each letter of the alphabet. The leaves are cut so as to make an offset on which the letters of the alphabet are pasted. Then by placing the thumb on a letter, the book can be thrown open to find any name beginning with that letter.

Errors in posting may be corrected by drawing a line in red ink, or with a pencil, through the error and then posting the entry to the proper place. Never erase, as the paper is injured by the operation, and in case the books are brought into Court, it may be difficult to explain the erasure.

A red ink entry in the Ledger, denotes that the amount thus written is to be transferred, either to some other account, or to another position under the same account. "It also shows that the entry is first made in the Ledger, not having passed through the usual preliminary books of entry. Red ink entries are always transferred to the opposite side from where they are first written, for the reason that they express the excess of that side."

PART II.

DOUBLE ENTRY.

Double Entry is a system of book-keeping in which every transaction is twice entered; first on the debtor side of one or more accounts, and then on the creditor side of one or more other accounts, to which it also belongs. The principle which underlies double entry book-keeping may be pertinently stated thus,—Every debit has its credit—every amount that is charged to one account must be placed to the credit of another.

For example: a man purchases a bill of merchandise from a merchant; the merchant enters the amount of the merchandise on his books to the debit of the purchaser and to the credit of Mdse. account, one entry thus balancing the other.

Book-keeping by single entry embraces only the accounts of persons; but in double entry persons and things are alike debited and credited, and accounts are kept not only with individuals, but also with the different species of property in your possession, and with the different branches of your gains and losses. Double Entry enables you,—by thus keeping an account with property—to know the condition of any department of your business at a glance, and gains or losses may be determined by examining only two or three accounts.

It is a beautiful system—a science in fact, based upon true mathematical principles, all the elements composing it being so interwoven that a derangement of one can be traced by the effect upon the others;—a perfect, mathematical, and evenly-balanced system of checks and counter-checks, every detail being adjusted with that nicety and precision which produces absolute correctness in results.

There is a genuine beauty in a mathematical problem, for when it is worked out the solution is susceptible of proof within itself. And so in double entry book-keeping, the correctness of the work can be clearly demonstrated,—the existence of the slightest error being readily detected and the error easily traced.

NOTE.—In Part II., the period after common abbreviations and contractions, in the fully worked-out Model Sets, is omitted. This omission of the period is in accordance with the practice of business men.

DOUBLE ENTRY BOOKS.

Accounts in double entry are usually kept in a "set of books" known as Day Book, Journal, Ledger, and Cash Book. In an extensive business, several additional books are needed, such as Invoice Book, Sales Book, Bill Book, Order Book, and others, according to the nature of the transactions.

The Day Book contains a plain history of your business transactions, written in the order of their occurrence. It is customary to open the Day Book by giving a statement of your Assets and Liabilities at the commencement of business, making the entry in history form; and complete, in as few words as possible.

The Journal is used for arranging under Ledger titles the entries that have been previously made in the Day Book, and for affixing to each Ledger title the correct amount of debit or credit; this is called journalizing.

Business men have abandoned the use of the Day Book and Journal as separate books. The two are usually combined and may be called a Journal-Day-Book. When combined, the Journal entry is made first, and the Day Book explanation written as briefly as possible either under or at the right of the Journal entry.

It is true that in practice, the use of the Journal is becoming obsolete, for it only entails additional labor without compensating benefits. But when we teach our juniors, we must first let them grasp the system of the Italians,—using Day Book and Journal as separate books—and make them understand its theory, before they can use our short cuts and labor-saving contrivances. It is customary, in journalizing, to write the journal entry as follows:

Cash Dr.

To Mdse.

As the debit account is always above and to the left of the credit, the mere position of the names indicates which is "Dr." and which is "Cr." of the accounts; therefore, "Dr." and "To" may be omitted, and the entry made in the following manner:

DOUBLE ENTRY BOOKS.

The Journal should have two extra columns,—one for Mdse. Dr., and the other for Mdse. Cr.; by the use of these extra columns, it is unnecessary to post the merchandise oftener than once a month,—crediting Mdse. account in the Ledger at the end of the month for total sales on account, as shown by the Mdse. Cr. column, and debiting it for purchases on account as shown by Mdse. Dr. column.

The Ledger is the most important book of the series. Its principal use is to collect under one head all sums belonging to the same account. The form and mode of entry in a Double Entry Ledger is similar to Single Entry. The principal difference in the use of the Ledger in the two systems is this: The Single Entry Ledger contains accounts with individuals only, while the Double Entry Ledger contains accounts not only with persons, but with every species of property in which we deal. On the debit side we find Resources and Losses; on the credit side, Liabilities and Gains.

The Cash Book, as in single entry, contains a record of cash transactions; but it may profitably be used as a book of original entry, and the posting done directly therefrom to the Ledger. In making entries in this book sufficient explanation should accompany the entries to make them plain. It is unnecessary to keep a cash account in the Ledger; but, instead, enter on the Trial Balance, when it is taken, the balance or totals of the Cash Book.

The Sales Book contains a record of Mdse. sales. It is not often used in small establishments, as the sales are generally recorded in the Journal-Day-Book. When a Sales Book is kept, you may post directly from it to the Ledger,—posting the debits to the personal accounts therein charged, and carrying the total sales forward till the end of the month, when Mdse. account is credited in one entry for the total sales of the month.

The Invoice Book contains a record of Mdse. bought. The following plan of keeping an Invoice Book is simple and economical: Get a scrap-book of proper width of page, and rule a single dollar-and-cent column at the right side of each page. Index the book and paste the bills in alphabetical order, according to firm names. Carry the amount of each bill to the money column at the right. Post directly from this book to the Ledger,—crediting the proper account in the Ledger with the amt. of the bill in the Invoice Book, and carrying forward the totals of the money column till the end of the month, when Mdse. account may be debited in one entry for the total purchases of the month.

DOUBLE ENTRY BOOKS.

The Bill Book contains a record of Notes and Time Drafts received and given. The form on page 23, in single entry, will answer for double entry. By changing the ruling of this book,—adding a column or two at the right—all accounts with notes and time drafts may be kept in the Bill Book. Bills Receivable and Bills Payable accounts may then be omitted in the Ledger, but in making a Trial Balance the same course must be pursued as with the cash account.

PRINCIPLES AND RULES.

In Double Entry book-keeping, there are three kinds of accounts aside from an account with the proprietor: accounts with persons, accounts with property, and accounts representing allowances made by us, or to us, for interest, discount, exchange, premium, storage, commission, expenses, etc., by which we sustain losses or realize gains.

Accounts may be divided into two classes: one of which is used to designate the Resources and Liabilities, and the other the Losses and Gains. The first may be called Real or Balance accounts, and the second, Representative or Loss and Gain accounts.

When the debit side of an account in the Ledger is the larger, the difference between the two sides is always either a Resource or a Loss. If this difference be anything of value belonging to us, or any note or personal account owing to us, it is a Resource; if not, it is a Loss.

When the credit side of an account in the Ledger is the larger, the difference between the two sides is always either a

PRINCIPLES AND RULES.

Liability or a Gain. If this difference be any note or personal account we owe, it is a Liability; if not, it is a Gain.

OPENING A SET OF BOOKS.

As in Single Entry, the proprietor must be credited, in commencing business, with his Resources, and debited with his Liabilities. In a partnership business each member of the firm is credited and debited in a similar manner.

In the Italian system, you make a plain statement in the Day Book, of the condition of the business at commencing, giving a list of the Resources and Liabilities. (See Model Set 1.)

If you use the Journal-Day-Book, make the Journal entry first: List of Resources Dr. To Proprietor, and Proprietor Dr. To List of Liabilities; and then make the proper Day Book explanation. (See Model Set 2.) If there are partners, make a similar entry for each one. After making the proper entries in the Day Book, cash on hand should be entered in the Cash Book, notes in the Bill Book, and merchandise in the Invoice Book.

CLOSING A SET OF BOOKS.

It is customary in business to close the books once a year, at least. It is usually convenient to close all the accounts at this time, but the results of the year's work may be known by closing only the Loss and Gain accounts.

First Step. After all the items have been posted, take a Trial Balance of the Ledger accounts, to test the accuracy of the posting. Every debit must have its credit. Hence, if no mistake has been made, the sum of the debits in the Ledger will equal the sum of the credits, and the total footing of either side will equal the footing of the Journal. A Trial Balance is the test of this. In actual business it should be "taken off" at the close of each month.

A Trial Balance is made by writing the name of each account with corresponding aggregate debit and credit amounts. Find the sum of the debits and also of the credits. If the footings agree the Ledger is probably correct. If they do not agree, the error must be found. The first step in the search for the error, is to examine the footings of the Ledger and of the Trial Balance, to see if an error has been made in adding. An error is frequently made by posting an amount to the wrong side of an account. If this discrepancy is an even number, take half of it, and examine the books from which you posted to see if such an amount can be found. Correct the error before proceeding further. A shorter Trial Balance may be made by omitting all accounts that balance.

PRINCIPLES AND RULES.

Second Step. Open an account in the Ledger with "Loss and Gain," and another with "Balance;" the former to contain the balances of the Loss and Gain accounts, and the latter the balances of the accounts showing Resources and Liabilities.

Third Step. Make out an inventory of all property unsold. In business, this process is called "taking an account of stock," and consists in actually enumerating the articles, estimating each at its cash value.

Credit each account for which such property was originally debited, with the value of that unsold, making the entry in red ink, using the term "Balance." Debit Balance account also with this inventory, making the entry in black ink, using the term Merchandise, Real Estate, Expense, etc., as the case may be.

Fourth Step. Close the accounts in the order in which they occur in the Ledger, omitting the proprietor's or partners' account until all the other accounts have been closed.

Close a "Representative" account by entering on the smaller side, in red ink, the difference between the two sides, using as the closing term,—Loss and Gain. Then rule up the account and bring down the footings, carrying the Balance entry of the Inventory, if any, below the rulings on the debit side of the account,—"Balance," in black ink. Transfer the Loss and Gain amount to the opposite side of Loss and Gain account, writing, in black ink, the name of the account from which the transfer was made.

Close an account showing Resources and Liabilities, by entering on the smaller side, in red ink, the difference between the two sides, using the term "Balance." Rule and foot the account, and carry the balance below the rulings, in black ink, placing it on the opposite side from its position above. Transfer the red ink entry,—"Balance," to the proper side of Balance account.

PRINCIPLES AND RULES.

The Loss and Gain account will now show on the debit side all the losses, and on the credit side all the gains,—the difference between the two sides being the net loss, or the net gain.

The Balance account will now show on the debit side all the Resources, and on the credit side all the Liabilities,—the difference between the two sides being the net capital or the net insolvency of the proprietor.

Fifth Step. Close Loss and Gain account into the Proprietor's account, or if it be a partnership business, into the partners' accounts, dividing the profits or losses according to agreement. The difference between the two sides will be entered on the smaller side, in red ink,—the closing term being the Proprietor's name or "Stock."

The difference between the two sides of the Proprietor's account will now show the same result as Balance account,—net capital at closing.

Sixth Step. Close Balance account into the Proprietor's, or the Proprietor's account into Balance, as you please; in either case, the account which is closed last should exactly balance. (See diagram, page 89; or model, page 96.)

RULES FOR JOURNALIZING.

"There is no infallible rule for journalizing—no single statement that will apply logically and with equal force to the record of all transactions;" but the student will find the following formulas valuable:

Debit what we receive; or what costs us value.

LIST OF DEBITS.

Cash received.
Others' notes received.
Our notes redeemed.
What others owe us.
Capital withdrawn.
Outlay or loss.

Credit what we give; or what produces us value.

LIST OF CREDITS

Cash paid.
Others' notes disposed of.
Our notes issued.
What we owe others.
Capital invested.
Returns or gains.

PRINCIPLES AND RULES.

THE PROPRIETOR.

Debit the Proprietor for his liabilities assumed by the business, for all cash, Mdse., etc., withdrawn for private use. In a firm, debit each partner in a similar manner.

Credit the Proprietor for what he invests at commencement of business, and for all subsequent investments. In a firm, credit each partner in a similar manner.

The title "Stock" is sometimes used in place of the Proprietor's name.

MERCHANDISE.

Debit for amt. on hand at commencing, for all we buy, and for any returned to us.

Credit for all we sell, and for any that we return. At closing, credit for amt. on hand.

Under the title "Mdse.," we include all goods in which the proprietor is dealing. If we wish to exhibit results in detail, we may open accounts with flour, clothing, etc., instead of uniting these various articles under the general head.

EXPENSE.

Debit with any outlay for carrying on the business.

Credit for anything disposed of, which was previously debited to Expense. At closing, credit for amt. on hand.

Under the title, "Expense," we generally include such items as rent, salaries, fuel, light, office books, office furniture, insurance, repairs, etc.

BILLS RECEIVABLE.

Debit for all written promises to pay, of other parties, when received.

Credit for the written promises to pay, of other parties, when paid or otherwise disposed of.

Under the title, "Bills Receivable," we include, Time Notes, and Drafts. Drafts are sometimes called Acceptances. Debit and credit Bills Receivable, for the face value of notes and drafts. The difference between the two sides will show Bills Receivable on hand.

PRINCIPLES AND RULES.

BILLS PAYABLE.

Debit whenever we pay notes and drafts we owe.		Credit for our notes when issued, and for drafts we ac- cept.
---	--	---

Under the title, "Bills Payable," we include notes and accepted drafts, due at some future time. The difference between the two sides will show the Bills Payable outstanding.

CASH.

Debit when received.		Credit when paid out.
----------------------	--	-----------------------

Under the title, "Cash," we include currency, checks, postal orders, sight drafts, and, generally, all kinds of paper payable on demand. A cash account should not be kept in the Ledger, as the Cash Book gives all the information needed. It is unnecessary labor to keep a bank account in the Ledger. You may consider the amount on deposit as so much cash on hand, and keep an account with the bank in the check book.

INTEREST AND DISCOUNT.

Debit when allowed to others.		Credit when allowed to us.

Interest is the compensation allowed for the use of money; and discount is the allowance made for the payment of a debt before it is due. "When we allow or pay for the use of money, we debit Interest for the use of the money which we receive, and credit Cash for the cash we give for the use of that money. When we are paid for the use of money which we have loaned, we debit Cash for the cash we receive, and credit Interest for the use of the money we give."

"When we need money, we sometimes take the notes which we hold against others to a bank and get them 'discounted.' If the notes are not drawing interest, the banker deducts a certain amount from the face of the note, and gives us the balance in cash. The amount which he deducts is the 'discount,' or the sum we pay him for the use of the money for the unexpired time of the note."

The above rules will apply also to such accounts as Storage, Commission, Exchange, etc

PRINCIPLES AND RULES.

REAL ESTATE.

Debit for cost.

Credit for returns.

Under the title, "Real Estate," we include, farms, lots, houses, etc. In practice we usually keep a separate account with each kind of real estate, and the general term—Real Estate—is not needed.

PERSONAL ACCOUNTS.

Debit, at commencement, for what they owe us; and debit for everything we let them have on account.

Credit, at commencement, for what we owe them; and credit them for all we receive on account.

Under this heading we include persons, firms, and corporations. If the debit side of a personal account is the larger, the difference between the two sides is a Resource. If the credit side is the larger, the difference is a Liability.

LOST ACCOUNTS AND NOTES.

Debit for amounts we lose on accounts and notes by persons failing in business, making assignments, etc.

Credit for amounts that are afterwards paid on accounts and notes, which we had debited to this account.

Close this account into Loss and Gain. This account is not usually opened in the Ledger; but it will pay to keep it for the information it furnishes in a condensed form. If not kept, the worthless personal accounts should be separately closed into Loss and Gain, and the amounts lost on notes and drafts be charged to the same account. In closing an account which is entirely worthless, credit it in red ink,—“Lost Accounts and Notes,” for the balance of the account, and carry this balance to the debit side of Loss and Gain account, writing the name of the account from which it was transferred.

Posting is carrying accounts to the Ledger. An account is opened in the Ledger with every debit and credit item found in the Journal. Every debit item in the Journal must be placed on the debit side of its account in the Ledger, and every credit in the Journal on the credit side of its account in the Ledger. The date of the item in the Journal is carried with it to the Ledger.

PRINCIPLES AND RULES.

In posting debit items, write as an explanation in the Ledger account, the name of the credit item; and in posting credit items, write as an explanation in the Ledger account, the name of the debit item. The page of the Ledger is entered in the Journal, and the page of the Journal, in the Ledger.

Sundries is a technical term frequently used in book-keeping. It simply means various accounts, and is convenient as a Journal expression, to avoid the necessity of enumerating the items which comprise the totals carried to the Ledger accounts. It need not be written in the Journal, but may be understood when posting the totals. (See Model, page 93.)

Loss and Gain account generally receives the balance of the following accounts, for they are usually speculative in character and show losses or gains: Merchandise, Expense, Interest and Discount, Real Estate, Commission, etc.

Balance account generally receives the balances of the following accounts, for they usually show resources or liabilities: Cash, Bills Payable, Bills Receivable, Personal accounts, etc.

Change Single Entry to Double Entry in the following manner:

First.—Take an inventory of Mdse., and all other property on hand not at present represented in the Ledger; open an account in the Ledger for each kind of property,—Merchandise, Bills Payable, Bills Receivable, Cash, Expense, Interest and Discount, Real Estate, etc.—and debit these accounts for the total value of each as represented in the inventory. Also, credit the parties from whom we received notes, with the amount of such notes, if they were not credited with the notes at the time received; and debit the parties to whom we gave notes, with the amount of such notes, if they were not debited at the time the notes were issued.

Second.—Make out a “statement” in the usual manner—placing all the Resources on one side and the Liabilities on the other. The difference between the two sides of the Statement will be the Present Worth, and by comparing it with the Net Capital at commencing, the loss or gain will be found. Enter this amt. as “Loss and Gain” in the Ledger, on the proper side of the Proprietor’s account—if it is a Gain, on the credit side, if a Loss, on the debit side.

PRINCIPLES AND RULES.

Third.—Take a Trial Balance of the Ledger, for after the change to Double Entry has been made, your Ledger must balance, because all your Resources appear upon the debit side, and all your Liabilities and the Present Worth appear upon the credit side.

Partnership Change. In taking a new partner into the business, it is usually best to close the books at the time the change is made, and to make out a Balance Sheet, in order that the present condition of the business may be shown in a condensed form. When this is done, the Ledger exhibits on its face nothing but those accounts which are either Resources or Liabilities; it also shows the "present net worth" of the proprietor, or of each of the old partners. The new partner may now be credited with his net investment.

A Balance Sheet or Statement is usually made out once a month, in order that the proprietor may know how his business is progressing. At the close of the month, after the Trial Balance has been taken, it is the best time for preparing this Statement. The forms in use are various, according to the necessities of the occasion and the ingenuity of the accountant. The process of showing results is precisely similar in its order, and the results the same as in "closing the Ledger," which latter operation has already been fully explained. A Form, showing a combined Trial Balance and Balance Sheet, will be found on page 106.

Correcting Errors. When an entry is posted to the wrong side of an account, draw a red line through the amount of such error, and then post the amount as it should have been posted.

Errors in the Journal can be, in many cases, corrected by canceling one or two figures with a pencil, and writing the correct ones above.

When a Journal entry has not been posted at the proper time, do not make the date column of your Ledger show dates improperly, as, for example, that March comes after April, but post the entry under the date of the last entry, giving the proper date, in parentheses, to right of explanation column; thus: (March 10).

MODEL SET III.

In this set a Journal-Day Book, a Cash Book, Bill Book, Invoice Book, and Ledger will be kept. We shall post from the Journal and Cash Book.

The Journal, in this set, has four columns. It is readily apparent that this plan of increasing the number of columns in the Journal may be extended so as to make six, eight, ten, or even more of these special columns available for three, four, five, or more repeatedly occurring species of Mdse. or other principal items of exchange.

Many book-keepers use six columns, and keep an account with Cash in the Journal; but as we are, in this set, to post from the Cash Book, it will be a saving of time to omit Cash from the Journal. The advantage of using this form of the Journal is in the saving of time and labor in posting, as only the footings of these columns are posted—daily, weekly, or monthly, as desired. All items for which no special columns have been provided, are placed in the General or Sundries column, and each of these items is separately transferred to the Ledger, as in posting from the ordinary Journal.

All bills of Mdse. bought are pasted in the Invoice Book, as in Set III, p. 71, of Single Entry. The debit column of Mdse. in the Journal contains the same amounts as the Invoice Book; consequently, we need not post from the Invoice Book. The Sales Book is seldom kept, except in wholesale or large retail establishments.

San Francisco, July 1, 1884. Henry Witherspoon and W. W. Locke commenced business as partners, under the firm name of Witherspoon & Locke. Gains and losses to be equally divided.

Henry Witherspoon invests cash, $3500; Wm. B. Zimmerman's note, his favor, dated June 1, '84, at 3 mos., for $300; balance due on acc, from Frank Herbert, $200.

W. W. Locke invests cash, $1500; Mdse, $1000; and the firm agrees to assume the following liabilities of W. W. Locke: note held by John Van Eaton for $350, dated June 15, '84, at 90 ds.; a personal account due Oliver Webb, amt. $150.

July 2. Deposited $4800 in Commercial Bank. Bo't of Votaw & Co., a bill of Mdse., as per invoice, $1450; gave check on Com-

EXERCISES FOR THE STUDENT.

The usual way is to consider the money in the bank as cash on hand, and to keep the account with the bank by means of the Bank Book and Check Book. Some prefer, however, to keep an account with the bank in their Ledger, in the same manner as accounts with persons, debiting the bank for deposits made, and crediting it for checks drawn on the same.

Bo't of Cook & Co., of N. Y., an invoice of groceries, $4000; gave our check on City Bank for $2000;—balance on acc't.

2. Rented a store of H. Witherspoon at $100 per month, and paid, cash, $25 in advance.

Goods sent abroad, to be sold for your account, must not be debited to the consignee, but must have a specific title, under which to keep an account of them, just as goods at home have the title of "Mdse." The title usually given is "Shipment," or "Adventure," to such a place or such a party. You may call this "Shipment to San Francisco, No. 1."

Cash sales, $125.

MODEL SET IV.

This set illustrates a method of posting from three books of original entry—the Journal-Day Book, Cash Book, and Sales Book. The Bill Book, Check Book, and Ledger complete the books used in the set.

By the addition of an extra column, headed "Mdse. Dr.," in which only purchases of merchandise are entered, the Journal-

MODEL SET IV.

Day Book serves also as Invoice Book, in a condensed form. The bills of purchases are posted in a blank book, as in preceding sets.

The items entered in the columns headed "Sunds. Dr.," and "Sunds. Cr.," of the Journal-Day Book, are posted, as from an ordinary Journal, separately to the Ledger. The totals of Mdse. column are brought forward from page to page; the total footing—covering either a day, week, or month, as may best accord with the business—being finally carried to the debit of Mdse. account in the Ledger.

The Sales Book contains sales of Mdse. only. The net amount of each sale is carried to the right-hand column, and the footing of this column is brought forward from page to page, until the end of the day, week, or month, as desired; the total footing being then posted to the credit of Mdse. account. The debits, in the Sales Book, are separately posted, in the usual way.

The Check Book contains a record of all transactions with the bank. The bank is debited for deposits, by entering the amounts, with the proper explanation, in the Check Book, and credited for the amounts withdrawn by check. No account is kept with the bank in the Ledger; the amount in bank being treated as cash on hand.

The Cash Book contains a record of all cash transactions. Special columns are used in order to facilitate the work of posting. The footings of the special columns are posted daily, weekly, or monthly. No cash account is kept in the Ledger. The sum of the debit columns, "Sunds." and "Mdse.," shows the amount of cash received; the sum of the credit columns, "Sunds." and "Expense," the amount of cash paid out. The difference between these sums is equal to the amount of cash in the safe or drawer. Cash in drawer, plus amount in bank, shows the total of cash on hand.

KEY TO EXERCISES FOR THE STUDENT.

PART I

[NOTE.—A "Key" to the exercises has been added, in order to afford the student reliable checks on the outcome of his work. These "Closing Statements," also, will relieve the teacher from the task of verifying the purely arithmetical part of the work, permitting his time to be given, wholly, to the book-keeping proper of his class. In these statements the amounts drawn out by the proprietors during the time of business are to be counted in reducing net capital at commencement.]
